INTRODUCING A NEW LEADERSHIP CLASS...

INTENTIONAL LEADERSHIP LEADING WITH A PURPOSE

Are you an Intentional Leader?

Do you know what it means to be intentional?

Does your organization know its “why”?

Do you struggle with being strategic?

The class is a 2 and 1/2 day class addressing the next steps in your executive leadership development and includes membership in our exciting new Leaders Helping Leaders Network mentoring program and resource library coming this fall and free to those who have taken Dean’s class.

Just some of the topics covered include:

- ◇ Creating your personal “why”
- ◇ Understanding your purpose as a leader
- ◇ Developing your strategy for leading
- ◇ Understanding the generational differences
- ◇ How emotional intelligence is the secret to success
- ◇ How to be one and how to develop mentors
- ◇ And so much more

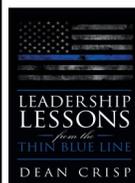

If your organization is engaged in, focused on starting or just thinking about the importance of leadership development, this class is a must. Learn more about the Dean and the class at www.lhln.org

Dean Crisp is a 30+ veteran of law enforcement with 25 years in leadership positions culminating as Chief of Police for two separate municipalities over 17 years.

After retiring from the city of Columbia, South Carolina, Dean became the lead instructor and trainer for LEEDA. As the main developer of leadership training for law enforcement, Dean has trained and coached fellow LEEDA instructors, developed curriculum and traveled extensively as a much-sought after trainer, coach, mentor, and speaker.

He started Crisp Consulting Group with the intent of transforming lives with his leadership lessons.

He is the author of Leadership Lessons from the Thin Blue Line available on Amazon here.

Dean also has given a TedTalk click here to watch.
